EU Regulation REACH EC 1907/2006 - RoHS 2011/65/EU

Dear Mr. Haug

Please find our statement which refers to the above specified guideline.

The guideline VO EG 1907/2006 and RoHS 2011/65 of the European Council regarding the restrictions of dealing and use of hazardous material is not applicable for our products of oriented and non oriented electrical steel according to DIN EN 10106 / 10107.

To our knowledge the formulation of alloys of the electrical steel are not subject to a registration obligation of the steel product manufacturer.

The requirements of guideline EG 1907/2006 are considered by our suppliers respectively their suppliers for the relevant raw material supplied to us.

We already comply to the information obligation of Article 33 of the REACH regulation since our products are free of concern causing substances “substances of very high concern (SVHC)” respectively do not exceed the legally demanded concentration values.

According to our suppliers these products are free of hazardous substances

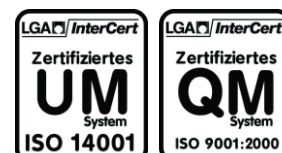

Also in future you will receive WAASNER – Products compliant to the EU-Guidelines.

We hope this has been of help to you.

For further questions do not hesitate to contact us again.

Yours sincerely

Peter Brandner
